Excerpt from Massachusetts, and How She Is Governed: Address of His Excellency Alexander H. Rice, Delivered at the Ratification Meeting in Faneuil Hall, Thursday, Oct; 10 Fellow-citizens, fellow-Republicans, honest men of all parties and of all opinions, assembled here, - We have gathered hi this venerable hall, consecrated to patriotic and sacred associations and memories, to pass together in evening in considering some of those important questions which affect the character and welfare of the nation at large, the peace and happiness of our own homes, the prosperity of our industries, and the renown of this grand old Commonwealth which we so fervently love. (Applause.) It is something of a heritage to be an American citizen. One feels it to be so when he stands within the precincts of Faneuil Hall, and opens his mind and his heart to the associations of this place. It is also a lofty privilege to be a citizen of Massachusetts. The Glory Of The Old Commonwealth. We remember that it was Massachusetts who first received upon her virgin soil the Puritan and the Pilgrim, who established here the principles which underlie all American civilization, and out of which has grown much of the fame, of the happiness, and of the prosperity, which we of New England claim.
